Attention 18-year-old kids! You might want to rethink that totally kick ass, sick nasty tattoo you're planning on getting to piss off your parents this weekend.

Megan Fox , who decided to get Marilyn Monroe's face permanently inked on her right arm, wants her tattoo gone!

The actress told reporters at a screening of her newest film, Friends With Kids, that she and her 90210 hubby are "both removing tattoos that we don't necessarily need anymore."

And in case you're wondering, getting a tattoo removed hurts just as much as getting one.

"It sucks — it's not fun at all," she shared. Megan went on to describe the first (and only, so far) laser removal treatment as, "Extremely painful."

She may have found a less painful alternative, however. If she manages to make her tattoo disappear using this revolutionary method, she may be the first person in HISTORY to do so. Megan plans on harnessing her inner Transformers skillz to will the unwanted tattoo away!

Ha! We're not sure it works like that, but thankfully she's only joking and not going cray cray, as she quipped:

“I’m trying to absorb the ink just through willpower, trying to make it go away on its own and it’s kind of working!”

Unfortunately for Megan, she's just going to have to gather up more courage to go under the laser again. After being asked when she expects not to wake up to Marilyn's face anymore, she revealed, "When I have the nerve to go and get my next laser treatment."

Be strong, gurl!
